

References and Image Sources

- [1] Barber, D. G., Meier, W. N., Gerland, S., & Mundy, C. J. (2017). Chapter 5: Arctic Sea Ice. In Snow, Water, Ice and Permafrost in the Arctic (SWIPA) 2017 (pp. 103–136). Arctic Monitoring and Assessment Programme.
- [2] French, H., Slaymaker, O., Barber, D., & Lukovich, J. (2012). Chapter 8: Sea Ice in Canada. In Changing cold environments: a Canadian perspective (pp. 147–162). J. Wiley & Sons.
- [3] Lindsey, R., & Scott, M. (2019, September 26). Popular Arctic sea ice visualizations. <https://www.climate.gov/news-features/understanding-climate/climate-change-minimum-arctic-sea-ice-extent>.
- [4] Cooley, S. W., Ryan, J. C., Smith, L. C., Horvat, C., Pearson, B., Dale, B., & Lynch, A. H. (2020). Coldest Canadian Arctic communities face greatest reductions in shorefast sea ice. Nature Climate Change, 10(6), 533–538. <https://doi.org/10.1038/s41558-020-0757-5>
- [5] French, H., Slaymaker, O., & Prowse, T. (2012). Chapter 9: Lake and River Ice in Canada. In Changing cold environments: a Canadian perspective (pp. 163–181). essay, J. Wiley & Sons.
- [6] Save our Sea Ice Campaign – SOS! Save Our Sea Ice Campaign - Polar Bears International. <https://polarbearsinternational.org/get-involved/save-our-sea-ice-campaign/>.
- [7] Matias, C. (2017, April 27). Photo by Cassie Matias on Unsplash. Beautiful Free Images & Pictures. <https://unsplash.com/photos/WgjlK0Lo7-A>.